Stockholm – the perfect port of call

The Baltic Sea region displays a unique and different side of Europe. One you must visit or even better, cruise through. Right at the heart of the Baltic region is Stockholm. Entering Stockholm is to sail through one of the most breath taking natural landscapes in the world, with its snow covered cobs and islands in the winter and its green and everlasting light in the summer. Stockholm is built on 14 islands with ten centuries of history and culture and a remarkable modernity and trend sensitivity in everything from lifestyle to design, cuisine, and new technology.

Why Stockholm?

Entering Stockholm is to sail through one of the most breathtaking natural landscapes in the world – the Archipelago with its 30,000 islands, islets and rocks. The city center is filled with vast open water and wonderful parks and walking areas, historical sights and attractions. 100 art galleries and 75 museums make up the single greatest concentration of galleries and museums in one place. It is not just a one of the most beautiful cities you can find, the capital has also been widely publicized as one of the world's most dynamic, creative and exciting contemporary urban scenes, with cutting edge fashion, design, restaurants, art, music and night life. Here are some reasons for stopping by Stockholm:

1. The breathtaking archipelago
2. A city of contrasts, where preserved medieval buildings stand alongside modern architecture
3. The Old Town, Northern Europe's best preserved medieval city
4. The cosmopolitan and contemporary mentality
5. A city for all senses – countless museums, galleries and sites to suit every taste
6. World class shopping and innovative Swedish design
7. Easy to get around - a compact, walkable city so you can see and do most things in a short period of time
8. One of Europe's most dynamic and exciting gastronomic metropolises with world-class restaurants in every part of the city
9. Clean and safe with friendly locals eager to use their English

Stockholm will amuse you regardless of the season

Stockholm becomes a completely different story with every season. On the last day of April is Walpurgis, the celebration to kiss the winter goodbye with bonfires, parties and a lot of collective singing. In late June there is Midsummer, a celebration like no other to celebrate the arrival of high summer. Maypole dancing, herring, flower wreaths, snaps and more collective singing all take place during this beloved day. Late August leaves room for exotic crayfish parties, and of course for more snaps and more singing. On December 10th the city hosts the pristine Nobel Prize Banquet at the City Hall, and on December 13th is Lucia, the festival of light. Children all over town clad in all-white, sing along and bear candles to brighten up the dark winter morning. There is magic all year around in this town.
